Vintage Tours offsets the carbon footprint of its classic car fleet through tree donations

With its latest tree donation, made retroactively for the 2026 season, Vintage Tours is supporting a reforestation project in Krailling, Bavaria, while continuing its partnership with myreforest.

Kempten, 10 November 2026 – A passion for classic cars and a responsible approach to the environmental impact of travel are not mutually exclusive. That is why Vintage Tours is consistently continuing its commitment to offsetting the carbon footprint of its classic car fleet. For the 2026 season, which has now come to a close, the organiser of exclusive classic car tours in Portugal and Spain has once again made a tree donation to myreforest. The contribution will support a reforestation project in the Kreuzlinger Forst forest in Krailling, near Munich.

The concept is simple yet effective: Vintage Tours donates one tree for every vehicle taking part in one of its tours. This includes not only its own MGA Roadsters but also the vehicles of guests who join the tours in their privately owned classic cars. In this way, Vintage Tours' tree donations help offset the carbon footprint of all participating vehicles through a tangible contribution to reforestation.

One tree per vehicle on every tour – a partnership with a future

The partnership with myreforest is an integral part of Vintage Tours' approach to addressing the CO_2 emissions generated by its classic car tours. In doing so, Vintage Tours demonstrates its commitment to sustainability through tangible action: one tree is donated for every participating vehicle, contributing to a reforestation project.

Through the project in Krailling, Vintage Tours is supporting a regional reforestation initiative. Within the Kreuzlinger Forst protected landscape area, a previously unused plot of land is gradually being returned to woodland. Working alongside forest owners, forestry experts, companies and volunteers, myreforest is committed to developing a diverse and resilient woodland ecosystem.

The initiative is about more than simply planting new trees. A key element of myreforest's work is the long-term care and management of reforested areas. Young trees are protected and maintained, their growth is monitored and, where necessary, any losses are compensated for through additional planting. Step by step, a new forest is taking shape – one that can absorb and store CO_2 over the long term while contributing to the protection of the local ecosystem.

A commitment that stands the test of time

For Vintage Tours, supporting myreforest is more than a one-off charitable contribution. The continuation of the partnership next year has already been agreed. New plaques for the vehicle fleet have also been commissioned and will, in future, make the fleet's commitment to sustainability visible to the outside world.

"We are passionate about classic cars and want to offer our guests exceptional travel experiences in some of Portugal's most beautiful regions. At the same time, we are aware that our classic cars leave a carbon footprint. Through tangible measures, we want to contribute to offsetting these emissions. We are particularly pleased that our tree donation enables us to support a reforestation project close to our company headquarters in Kempten. For us, working with myreforest is therefore a natural and consistent choice – one we intend to continue next year," explains Matthias Haux, founder and owner of Vintage Tours.

In this way, Vintage Tours will continue to combine its passion for classic cars with a tangible contribution to climate protection: one tree for every vehicle taking part in a Vintage Tour.

About myreforest

myreforest organises the reforestation of climate-damaged fallow land in local forests, helping to create healthy and resilient mixed woodlands for the future. Tree species are selected carefully and in close coordination with forest owners and local forestry professionals, tailored to the specific conditions of each site. Recognised as a non-profit organisation, myreforest provides expert support to private owners of small forest plots with the help of foundations, donors, and sponsors.

At the same time, myreforest enables individuals to take part in reforestation projects through team events, group activities, and school excursions – all accompanied by hands-on forest education. The organisation operates regionally, sustainably, and with full transparency.

Run by dedicated volunteers, myreforest has gained valuable experience from planting and caring for approximately 68,000 trees across around 100 reforestation projects, supported by more than 2,900 planting volunteers throughout Germany.
